Polk County Health Receives HUD Grant

The Polk County Health Department received a $3,455,000.00 grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). This grant is dedicated to protecting children and families from the dangerous hazards of lead-based paint in the home.

“Lead paint was banned from residential use in 1978 and is the primary source of lead poisoning in Iowa. Two-thirds of Des Moines’ housing stock was built before 1978,” said Helen Eddy, Polk County Health Department Director. “In Polk County, we estimate 60,000 homes still have significant lead hazards.”

Lead is a highly toxic metal that can cause a range of health problems, especially in children under the age of six. During these years, children tend to put their hands and other objects, which may be contaminated with lead dust, into their mouths. When lead is absorbed into the body, it can cause damage to the brain and other vital organs, like the kidneys, nerves and blood.

Children can also be exposed to lead when families renovate their older home without utilizing lead safe work practices. Lead paint is also still used in other countries. Children who have lived in or visited these countries may be lead poisoned. Iowa Department of Public Health recommends all children are tested for lead at 12 and 24 months of age.

Children who live in an older home need to be tested more frequently. This test can be done with your primary care physician or at a local Health Department.

“As parents and guardians, we need to be thinking about lead poisoning and where our child spends most of their time,” said Eddy. “The child may live in a newer house but if he or she spends significant time at daycare or at their grandparents, they still could be at risk for lead poisoning if the home was built before 1978.”

If your child lives in or spends significant time in a home built before 1978, the Polk County Health Department can help. This HUD grant was awarded so that we can help protect children and families from the hazards of lead-based paint and from other home and safety hazards. The program works with families who have a home built before 1978, have children under the age of six who live in or visit the home and meet income eligibility requirements to remove interior and exterior lead hazards from the home.

Please note that any home where the child spends a significant amount of time may be eligible. The child does NOT need to have an elevated lead level to qualify for the program. If you are interested in this program, please contact

Día del Niño at the Carousel was April 30th from 10 to noon. Although it was a cold day, everyone dressed warmly. Free carousel rides, piñatas, crafts, community resource tables, hands on activities and more were enjoyed by about 500 people. Día is an international celebration of the joy found in early childhood and reading. This year, the Des Moines Public Library and its community partners celebrated together, including Des Moines Fire, Police and Public Works departments. They even brought some of their vehicles for the kids to see up close. Literacy and STEM stations were available throughout the event for kids of all ages. A walk through bilingual story walk (I Can/Yo Puedo) was very fun and local artist, Linda Eclatt from 515 Prints, led a community art project for kids. Did we mention free carousel rides? About 800 free rides were provided!

Rollin' Relics Present Check!

The Des Moines Rollin' Relics Car Club presented a check to the Heritage Carousel for $10,000. Each year, the club sponsors the Cruise to the Carousel car show at Union Park and all proceeds from the show are donated to the Des Moines Carousel Foundation. The 2021 donation is the largest since the show began in 2000.

The Des Moines Carousel Foundation is extremely grateful to have the ongoing support of the Rollin' Relics. Donations to the Carousel help with the maintenance of the carousel and the building and allow us to keep the cost of a child's ride at just 50 cents. Grand View University Names Keck As 14th President

For the first time in its 125-year history, Grand View University's president will be a woman.

Rachelle Keck, currently president of Briar Cliff University in Sioux City, was announced today as the 14th president of the Des Moines liberal arts college. She was selected from among four finalists named by Grand View's board of trustees.

The announcement brought cheers and a standing ovation from a packed auditorium of students, faculty and administrators inside Grand View's Student Center. Keck will succeed Kent Henning, who announced his retirement last year, effective July 1.

Keck, 52, is an Iowa native and has been president of Briar Cliff since July 2018. Before that position, she was executive vice president and university counsel. She was previously the executive director of philanthropy and alumni relations at Indian Hills Community College in Ottumwa, and director of planned giving at the University of Iowa Foundation.

At Briar Cliff, Keck led the expansion of academic programs and developed a comprehensive campus master plan. She also led several key fundraising initiatives centered on academics, athletics and campus beautification. In addition, the use of technology both in and out of the classroom has expanded, the endowment has grown, enrollment has increased and grant dollars applied for and awarded have increased during her tenure. She also brings extensive strategic budgeting and organizational leadership experience to Grand View.

"Rachelle is a proven leader with a collaborative, entrepreneurial and transparent leadership style that will serve Grand View well," said Chris Littlefield, chair of the board of trustees. "The board was impressed with her demonstrated ability to effectuate constructive institutional change while improving student success, enhancing communication and shared governance, cultivating strong relationships, advocating for higher education, and fundraising for institutional needs. The board unanimously agreed that Rachelle was the best candidate to serve as Grand View's next president and to lead Grand View through its next exciting phase."

Keck graduated from Wartburg College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology, after which she earned her Juris Doctorate from the University of Iowa and her Doctor of Philosophy degree in education from Drake University. Keck began her career as a prosecutor before establishing her own law firm. She also served on the Wartburg College Board of Regents, where she developed a passion for higher education.

Keck said she is deeply rooted in lifelong learning, and being named Grand View's president is "absolutely a dream come true."

Grand View University shines as a visionary leader in the field, she said.

"Our entrepreneurial mindset, our critical location in the largest and fastest-growing city in the state, our connection to business and government, as well as the notable acumen and dedication of our faculty, staff, alumni and board have and will continue to be vital elements of Grand View University's ongoing success."

Keck said she is committed to innovation and excellence as well as diversity, equity and inclusion, and shared governance. She said she is eager to meet and to listen to the faculty, students and more than 21,000 alumni of the university, and to work together to develop shared goals.

Keck will continue to serve as Briar Cliff's president and secretary of its board of trustees through June, according to a press release from Briar Cliff University.

"Dr. Rachelle Keck has an opportunity to once again be located close to her loved ones and return to the area her career first began," wrote Mark Ward, Briar Cliff board chair. "On behalf of the board and Briar Cliff University community, we want to thank Dr. Keck for her years of service, visionary leadership, and the impact she has made during her tenure. We wish her the very best."

Grand View Buys Former Eastgate Property

By Business Record Staff

Grand View University has purchased 17 acres of the former Eastgate Plaza site, paying $3.1 million for the northeast Des Moines property, Polk County real estate records show.

"We are excited to acquire the Eastgate property and to be part of the rebirth of the northeast side of Des Moines," Kent Henning, Grand View president, said in a prepared statement.

Grand View University is located at 1200 Grandview Ave., less than a mile south of the former shopping center site. In 2014, the university purchased former bowling alley property at 3839 E. 14th St. that was adjacent to the shopping center. The bowling alley was upgraded and now houses the university's wrestling program.

"We always had plans to upgrade and utilize the remaining space in and around the former bowling alley," Henning said in the statement. "Having additional land [that is adjacent to the Viking Events Center] simply means we will be able to dream bigger."

The purchase comes more than a month after the Des Moines Plan and Zoning Commission approved a request to change the zoning on a portion of the site to allow construction of a medical office building. In addition, city officials have said they are reviewing plans for a Burger King that would be located at 1500 E. Euclid Ave.

The property on the northeast corner of Northeast 14th Street and East Euclid Avenue was once home to Eastgate Plaza, an open-air center anchored by now defunct department stores including Younkers, Sears and Ardan's.

Over the years, movie theaters, bowling lanes, a grocery store and night clubs were also located on what was originally a more than 40-acre site.

Florida developer Norman Weinstein, manager of Eastgate Plaza LLC, bought most of the Eastgate property in 1998 with hopes of reviving the dying retail center. Weinstein's efforts to attract big-name retailers to the site were unsuccessful.

Henning, who is retiring this summer, said in the prepared statement that Grand View does not yet have detailed plans for the property it acquired.

"Our main campus is landlocked," he said. "With the continued growth of our athletic programs, we anticipate the need for future expansion of athletic facilities."
